Monthly commentary, November 2024

The global equity markets saw positive performance in November following the US presidential election. Former President Donald Trump won the election in a landslide victory and the Republican party secured control of both the House and the Senate. Having experienced soaring inflation eroding their purchasing power over the past four years, the American people gave Donald Trump a strong mandate to improve the economy with a different set of policies than those enacted under President Biden. It is far too early to make any predictions about what the next Trump presidency may bring, but early signs point towards a better prepared organisation than in 2016. So far, we note that several of his early cabinet position nominees are China hawks. Moreover, tariffs are back in the media vocabulary, but the extent to which they will actually be used beyond pure negotiation tactics remains to be seen.

Elsewhere in the world, the Spanish government decided to extend a bank windfall tax previously set to expire (SKAGEN Global does not own any Spanish banks). In Africa, the sovereign finances of the Republic of Congo and Mozambique continued to face severe challenges on the debt side.

SKAGEN Global underperformed its benchmark index in November. The fund's top three absolute performers were JP Morgan, Moody's and Waste Connections. The leading global bank JP Morgan is a large position in the fund and the stock has performed exceptionally well in the stock market in 2024, delivering fifty percent total return measured in USD. The global credit-rating agency Moody's continues its upward journey with solid execution and the runway for its core business in debt issuance remains long. Waste Connections, a relatively new holding in SKAGEN Global, is the third largest solid waste company in the US and has shown impressive resilience in recent years.

The three worst performers in absolute terms were Samsung Electronics, Stora Enso and DSV. Samsung Electronics has not been able to capitalise on the semi-conductor boom and the company seems to have fallen behind on innovation. There was no significant company news relating to Stora Enso or DSV.

We will provide further commentary on portfolio changes, if any, at the end of the quarter. While the substantial gains in the stock market this year have removed some of the upside, we still consider the portfolio meaningfully undervalued with an attractive risk-reward over a multi-year investment horizon.
